PART 3: NOT DIFFICULT

INTRODUCTION

While Christianity draws many roots from the Old Testament, the early days of the New Testament church were marketed by radical decisions that would set it on a new trajectory. These decisions continue to shape and challenge the church today.

DISCUSSION QUESTIONS

1. What was the first Bible lesson or Bible concept you learned? Have you ever disagreed with or had difficulty accepting a lesson or concept you were taught?
2. Read Acts 15:1–5. For those who were holding onto the law of Moses (specifically circumcision), what was their biggest concern in leveling the playing field to become a Christian? Why didn't they want to give in on this rule?
3. Read Acts 15:9. In what ways do Christians make it difficult for others to turn to God? In what ways can the church move in the direction of those seeking God rather than requiring them to move in the church's direction?
4. Is there a way that Christians can appreciate the Old Testament while still living by the values and imperatives of the New Testament?
5. For some, the message in Acts 15 is very liberating. For others, it can be incredibly challenging. In order for you to apply this message, what does God need to help you with?

MOVING FORWARD

We should not make it difficult for those who are turning to God. The faith of the next generation may depend on it. Your neighbor's faith may depend on it. Someday, your faith may depend on it.

WEEKLY READING

Read Acts 15:1–35. How has the decision made by the Council of Jerusalem continued to shape and challenge the church today?
